2009 Summer Camp Weekly Highlights

Pictures and Text by Samantha Logan, Activities Program Manager

From the look of the walls in the camp room, Art Extravaganza brought out an immense amount of creativity among OGA campers. Experimenting with Cartooning, Cubism and Abstract Expressionism, the campers learned to open their artistic minds. However, many of them enjoyed Watercolor Painting the most and spent more time and energy on sketching and painting their watercolor projects than any other project during the week. Ending the week with a trip to the Portland Children's Museum, the campers had a blast running wild and crazy into an art frenzy! Face painting and working with clay took up most of their time, but many of the campers also visited the museum theatre to dress in costume, run the curtain, and take tickets—a little leftover fun from Star Performers week.
